What, if any, international opportunities does your institution offer to your medical residents?	The institution does not offer international opportunities to medical residents. We have had occasions in the past where a fellow completed the arrangements individually and the Graduate Medical Education Committee approved it. We would not limit a resident from taking advantage of an international opportunity but we do not specifically offer them. Although we do not officially host residents from other countries, occasionally a program will offer an observership to an international medical school graduate who we would like to see in a clinical setting, but this is not a formal part of a residency program and is handled by the individual departments.
